GIRL TELLS FIRST STORY OF CASE AGAINST NEW YORK MILLIONAIRE

Sixteen-Year-Old Florence Giddens, Who Caused White Slave Indictment of Julius Heilner, Blames Flirtation in Seigel-Cooper's—Ruined Through Marriage Promise

Little Florence Giddens, the 16-year-old child, of whom Julius Heilner, millionaire corset maker of New York, is accused of making a plaything, talked for the first time today of the case against the man who she says betrayed her.

The news had just been brought to her by a Day Book reported that the trial of Heilner on a charge of violating the Mann white slave act had been set for Jan. 5.

Florence seems little more than a school girl. And yet she is the accuser of this rich man who has a wife in New York. It was her story of how he brought her on a trip to Cincinnati, Louisville and Detroit that resulted in a social upheaval in Chicago and New York.

In the front room of her home at 15 E. 9th st., in the presence of her mother, Florence warned all girls to beware of the flirts who make the State street department stores their hunting grounds.

Florence met the man who led her to her ruin in the glove department of Seigel-Cooper's.

"If I hadn't been so fascinated by
